INCA'S

Indians of Peru - high degree of civilization. The gov't was very despotic. The words & thoughts of the subjects were controlled. They were not "allowed" to be happy or miserable in any way, not established by law. Under the reign of HUAYNA CAPAC (about 1492) the Inca empire attained its greatest power and extension. After his death, a long war of succession ensued between the 2 sons HUASCAR & ATAHUALPA, the latter had been successful & was on his way to Cuzco, the capital when he was met by PIZARRO, the Spanish conqueror. ATAHUALPA, desiring peace, made a friendly visit to Pizarro. He was taken prisoner & his people massacred. The Incas offered a very large ransom, to be paid in 2 months.

After the partition of his treasure, ATAHUALPA was murdered by order of Pizarro, in the square of CAJAMARCA Aug. 29, 1533. In 1536 the immensely reigning Inca MANCO escaped from his Spanish master and organized a revolt, but was finally defeated.
